Engineers are learning Japanese for this.

Tokyo. 7 a.m.

here's what it actually takes →

Learn Japanese first.

Most of these jobs need a basic Japanese test: JLPT N4 or the JFT-Basic. It takes months, not weeks, so start early.

hiragana*

Then prove your skill.

Each field has its own skills exam. Hands-on site and shop-floor experience counts here.

*the examiner.
no pressure.*

Then you fly.

With both tests and a job offer from a Japanese employer, you can go on Japan's Specified Skilled Worker visa: construction, manufacturing, nursing care and more.

*next stop:
Tokyo*

Japan openings, as they come in.

We share overseas roles on GroYouth along with jobs across India. Follow so you see the next one first, and tag a friend who's learning Japanese.
